Vander Bar In New York City Set To Open Its Doors

The Roosevelt Hotel in New York stands as one of the premier places for our readers to lay their heads, and the prestigious hotel has added another comfortable and convenient amenity to their already top of the line services. The Vander Bar, which is set to open its doors on March 15, 2010, will accommodate guests with the finest food and beverages available. Located only one block away from the popular St. Patrick's Parade, it is not a coincidence that this chic new spot is opening its doors on March 15.

Dark toned woods in a hi-gloss finish and intimate lighting accentuate Vander Bar's decor. Equipped with an extensive wine list for our wine connoisseurs, and various signature cocktails and draft beers for more of a relaxed outing, this bar offers the full experience for a night out in New York City. The bar also offers amazing dining options that match perfectly with the full bar selection.

With all the necessities to create an elite experience, Vander Bar is sure to become a haute spot for the always-chic and ever hip New York crowd. With construction essentially complete, hotel guests and city residents are simply waiting for the chance to rush toward this new location. Packed with energy and excitement, our readers should stroll down 45th Street on Vanderbilt Avenue after a busy day at the office to order some of these amazing appetizers and drinks. Haute Living always keeps our readers up to date on the place to be, and Vander Bar definitely receives our stamp of approval.
